

G1 Luddenden Dean

Luddenden Dean is a secluded side valley of the Calder. The deep wooded ravine runs north-south from Dean Head reservoirs on Worley moor to Luddenden Foot in the Calder Valley. It is an unspoilt valley with the extensive woodland of Jerusalem Woods along the valley bottom, small pasture fields and scattered cottages and farmsteads. The banks of the fast flowing stream contain evidence of former water powered mill sites.